SHOOTING at HONOKAA.

(From our own Correspondent)

On Saturday evening the 4th inst. at 8 o'clock at Haina near Honokaa, a young native by name of Wailua, went to an old Chinaman's house, and knocking at the door demanded a bottle of liquor. The Chinaman Akana by name went to the door, and assured the native that he had no liquor in his possession, and further, that he could not obtain any.

The Chinaman then returned to his bed and lay down, leaving the native standing in the doorway, and was preparing to light his pipe, when Wailua drew a revolver and fired at the Chinaman twice, one shot lodging in his head, and the other passing through his throat. Akana then drew his pistol from beneath the pillow and fired at Wailua, who at once turned and fled.

The following morning the Chinaman managed to crawl to a neighboring house in search of help, where his wounds were at once attended to by Dr. Greenfield. The ball in his head has been extracted, but the one in the throat still remains. The Chinaman was alive when I left on Friday, but it is feared he will die from the effects of the wounds.

The native was arrested on suspicion, as it was proved that he had bought some revolver cartridges the same afternoon, and upon being taken before the Chinaman, he was at once recognized. Further proof of Wailua's guilt is shown by the fact of his hand being pierced by a revolver ball—doubtless the effect of the shot fired by the Chinaman.

It is thought that Wailua's object was to murder the old man, rob the house and destroy it, and remains by fire, in this way removing all traces.
